

Corey Read, Shupp Hill Farms

Corey is the founder and proprietor of Shupp Hill Farms, a regenerative farm located on the 87-acre property in Northeastern Pennsylvania where he was born and raised. His deep-rooted connection to the land began early—his first job was working on a neighbor’s dairy farm just down the road from his childhood home.

A proud veteran the United States Marine Corps, where he served two overseas tours, and a former member of the Pennsylvania Army National Guard, Corey brings discipline, purpose, and leadership to his work in sustainable agriculture. In 2019, after years of building a career and serving his country, Corey and his family decided to return home and revitalize the family farm. That decision marked the beginning of Shupp Hill Farms.

Corey took a different approach to traditional farming, embracing regenerative agriculture—a sustainable, back-to-basics method that prioritizes soil health, biodiversity, and long-term land stewardship. He specializes in raising registered Dexter cattle to produce high-quality, animals for a variety of agriculture uses.

Drawing on both his academic background—he is a graduate of Penn State and holds a master’s degree from The George Washington University—and his practical experience.

Today, Corey and his family live full-time on Shupp Hill Farms, where they are committed to producing high quality Dexter cattle genetics for sustainable future growth.
